From Scholarpedia, the free peer-reviewed encyclopedia p.14112

Curator: Eugene M. Izhikevich, Editor-in-Chief of Scholarpedia, the free peer reviewed encyclopedia

Welcome to Scholarpedia, the free peer reviewed encyclopedia written by scholars from all around the world.

Scholarpedia feels and looks like Wikipedia - the free encyclopedia that anyone can edit. Indeed, both are powered by the same program - MediaWiki. Both allow visitors to review and modify articles simply by clicking on the edit this article link.

However, Scholarpedia differs from Wikipedia in some very important ways:

- Each article is written by an expert (invited or elected by the public).
- Each article is anonymously peer reviewed to ensure accurate and reliable information.
- Each article has a curator - typically its author -- who is responsible for its content.
- Any modification of the article needs to be approved by the curator before it appears in the final, approved version.

Herein also lies the greatest differences between Scholarpedia and traditional print media: while the initial authorship and review processes are similar to a print journal, articles in Scholarpedia are not frozen and outdated, but dynamic, subject to an ongoing process of improvement moderated by their curators. This allows Scholarpedia to be up-to-date, yet maintain the highest quality of content.

Featured Author: John J. Hopfield

John Hopfield (b. July 15, 1933, Chicago, Illinois) received his BA from Swarthmore College, and a PhD in physics from Cornell University in 1958. He spent two years in the theory group at Bell Laboratories, and subsequently was a faculty member at Berkeley (physics), Princeton (physics), Caltech (Chemistry and Biology) and now again at Princeton where he is the Howard A. Prior Professor of Molecular Biology. For 35 years, he also continued a strong connection with Bell Laboratories.

He was awarded the Dirac Medal of the ICTP in 2002 for his interdisciplinary contributions to understanding biology as a physical process, including the proofreading process in biomolecular synthesis and a description of collective dynamics and computing with attractors in neural networks, and the Oliver Buckley Prize of the American Physical Society for work on the interactions between light and solids. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

- ♦ As of 1/3/07, UMLAT appears to not be recognizing PRINT AVAILABLE for Journal Titles. For example, American Libraries, Journal of motor control, Annual review of neuroscience, etc all have volumes in the stacks and UMLAT is reporting NO PRINT AVAILABLE. An e-resource report has been submitted. 1/4/2007 by CR
- ♦ from Jody Thompson: "If architecture students are looking for campus building drawings, please direct them to the Archives. In our Reading Room, we now have a PC set up to access the on-line drawings." 1/3/2007
- ♦ To Open a stuck DVD drive: If the button on the DVD drive doesn't open it, one other convoluted way is as follows: Open Windows Media Player Program. Hit the small down arrow alongside the "now playing" button. Choose CD Drive. (If that is not a choice, then choose MORE OPTIONS.. and DEVICE.. then CD/DVD) Then hit ALT to bring up the Menu bar along the top... choose PLAY then EJECT... if that doesn't work, try rebooting machine. (If nothing works from above, just reboot the computer.)
- ♦ Interesting Citation Tool. You enter the ISBN and it gives you cite for MLA, APA, AMA, and Chicago style.
- ♦ The printer shuffle
In an attempt to reduce problems associated with color printing calibration, we have relocated the HP Color LaserJet 5500 to the LWC Productivity Lab (behind the UA station). We are not activating the LWC Productivity color printer until we have proper signage near the printers notifying students of this change. Students will still send jobs to LWC Color, and this station will simply serve as a new release station. There are four black and white printers, two at each end of the lab. Please let me know if you have any questions.
- ♦ If Student Can't Log-in: checklist

QUESTIONS

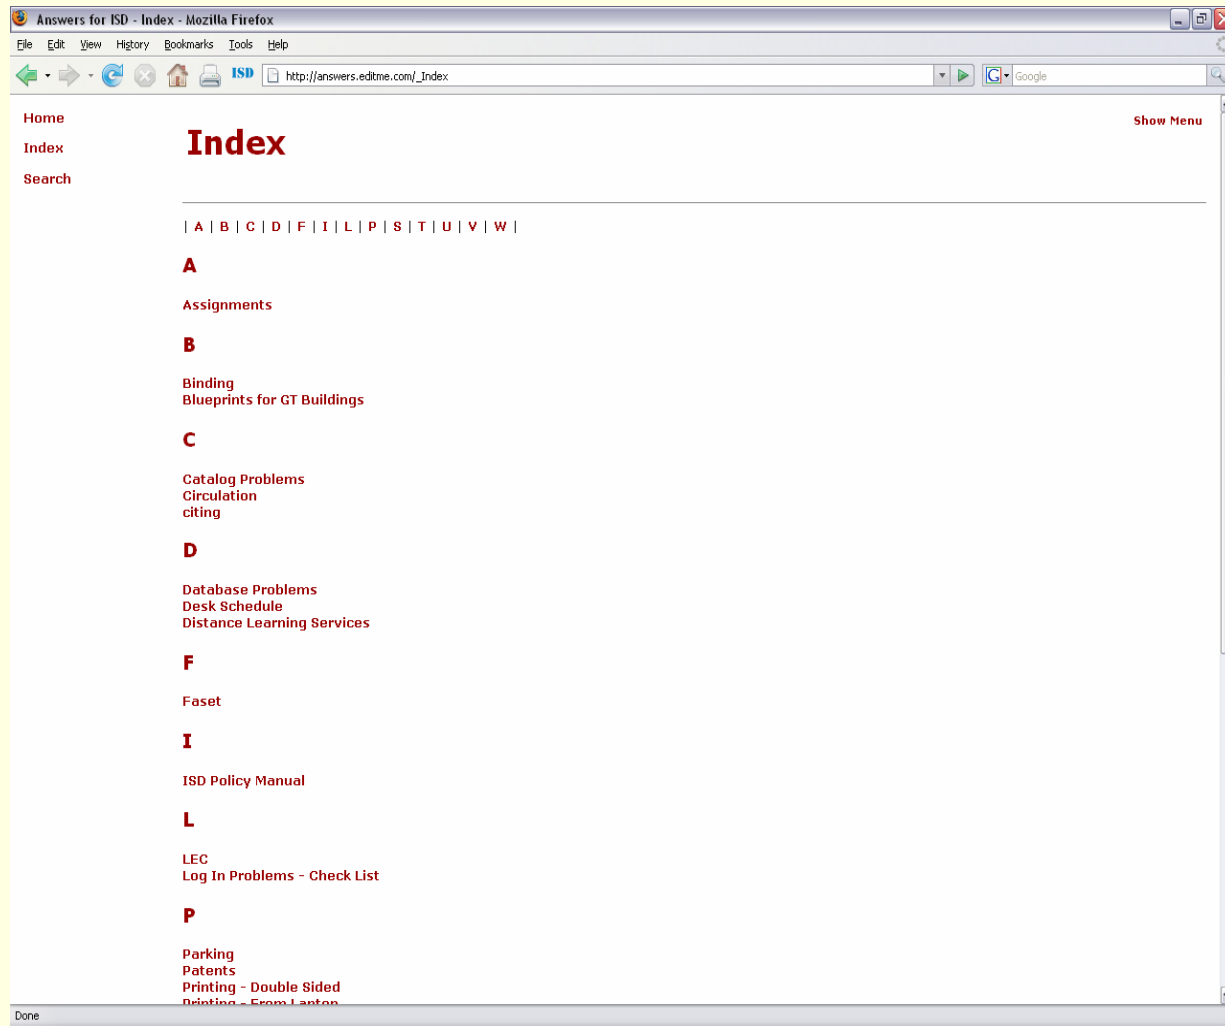

Which computer is the one with off-campus IP? I tried the one we used over the summer and that didn't work, nor did the govt docs one we used before that? Brian 10/07/2006

The Government Documents Workstation is on LAWN and should replicate the experience of an off-campus user. In most cases, you will not have to login into LAWN each time you sit down at this Workstation. tjff 10/10/2006

A banner below the navigation bar reads "Compare them all: Wikis, Forums, Podcasters, Weblogs" and "Brought to you from Berlin, Germany by CosmoCode". The main content area features the WikiMatrix logo and a navigation bar with links: Home, Choice Wizard, Search, Markup Compare, Docs, Forum, Register, Login, Advertise, and About. On the left, there is a "Compare" section with a list of wikis to choose from, each with a checkbox and a magnifying glass icon. The list includes @Wiki, bitweaver, BrainKeeper, CanvasWiki, CentralDesktop, Clearspace, ClearWiki, Confluence, Corendal Wiki, Cospire, DekiWiki, DidiWiki, DokuWiki, EditMe, ErfurtWiki, FlexWiki, Friki, and GeboGebo. A "compare" button is located below the list. The main content area has a "Welcome to WikiMatrix" message and a table with four columns: "Choose:", "Compare:", "Talk:", and "Enhance:". Each column contains a brief description of the action. Below the table is a "Random Wiki" section featuring "MoniWiki", which is described as a PHP based WikiEngine. To the right of the MoniWiki description is a small screenshot of the MoniWiki interface. At the bottom of the page, there are sections for "Recent Posts" and "Announcements".
